

YEAR OF THE BLACK
MAN
RESOURCE GUIDE
2015

Dear Friends,

Please join me, other elected officials, faith-based leaders, labor activists, educators, and community-based leaders in declaring 2015, the first ever, “Year of the African American Male.”

Beginning in 1492, the recorded date the slave trade began from Africa to the Americas all the way through Reconstruction, the Great Migration, the Civil Rights Movement to now; more than any other race or ethnicity in this Country, African Americans and especially African American Males have endured historic and systemic racism which has oppressed our assent into all areas of American life.

African American males have nationally recognized health disparities in almost all significant categories compared to other racial and ethnic groups. African American men have disproportionate incarceration, high school dropout, and unemployment rates; experience increased levels of homelessness and are more likely to suffer death as a result of trauma. As the organizers of the “Year of the African American Male” we call for any and all individuals and organizations to join us in collaboratively improving the outcomes in all of these documented categories.

We are launching this effort on January 29th at McClymonds high school, this kick-off is the first in a number of events held this year, focused on improving the lives of our Black men. Throughout 2015, we will bring together and highlight individuals and organizations that are working and focused on improving the overall quality of life for our African American males. Specifically in the areas of health, fatherhood, education, mentoring, workforce development, criminal justice and re-entry. As we are all aware, these issues have historically been the institutional barriers to equity and equality and together we will concentrate our collective attention in all of these areas to achieve improved results by the end of 2015.

Thank you,

Keith Carson
Alameda County Supervisor
District 5
